

RED RISING RAPIDLY

Col. Edward M. House

By NEA Service
WASHINGTON—While the world echoes to the grim smashing of the peace treaty he helped to make at Versailles not 20 years ago, "the gentlest, mildest-mannered and mildest-speaking man ever identified with American politics" passes from the scene.

Edward M. House, dead in New York, was one of the most powerful Americans of modern times, yet he never held a public office, never ran for one. Always closely identified with politicians as a "friend and advisor," he was Woodrow Wilson's unofficial Talleyrand, and until his still unexplained breach with the President in 1919, he was a mighty "power behind the scenes" in the Wilson administration.

This was as he wished it, for he held an unusual view of administration. "The only way you can really accomplish anything, and do what you want to do," he said "is to have authority without responsibility."

"Show me one of the great big fellows at the head of anything, and I'll bet you'll find some little fellow back of him who is actually doing the work," House once told a war correspondent.

Only a few months ago, House who was one of the American signers of the Treaty of Versailles as a member of the American Peace Commission, acknowledged that there were "obvious mistakes" in the treaty.

But he died firm in the belief that it was unlikely that a better treaty could have been had in 1919, because neither the governments nor the peoples of the allied countries would have accepted it.

Roosevelt Denies Dictatorship Idea

"No Inclination, and None of Qualifications," He Says

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, replying to dictatorship charges by opponents of his government reorganization bill, declared in a letter made public early Thursday he had "no inclination to be a dictator."

The letter, addressed to an unnamed person who had written the president, asserted:

"As you well know, I am much opposed to an American dictatorship as you are, for three simple reasons:

"A. I have no inclination to be a dictator."

"B. I have none of the qualifications which would make me a successful dictator."

"C. I have too much historical background and too much knowledge of existing dictatorships to make me desire any form of dictatorship for a democracy like the United States of America."

Rebels Surround New Spanish City

Lerida Is Believed Doomed in Drive to Reach the Sea

By the Associated Press
The subcommittee of the Spanish non-intervention committee, representing the major European powers, gathered Thursday and received a new British formula for the withdrawal of foreign soldiery from the civil war.

In Spain, the insurgent army attempted to isolate newly-captured Lerida and push on toward the coast. In China, hand-to-hand fighting raged on in the Tientsin-Pekow railway sector of the central front.

In France, the Popular Front government delayed consideration of its financial reform plan to let the political opposition cool off.

Rebels Close in
HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier—(AP)—Gen. Juan Yague's insurgents penetrated the outskirts of Lerida Wednesday while insurgent army corps extended along its north and south flanks continued their methodical advance against Catalonia.

Despite government efforts to stiffen resistance and a government counter-offensive west of Teruel, the insurgent offensive rolled steadily toward the Mediterranean. Its object was to add Catalonia to insurgent-conquered northern and western Spain, and bring a quick end to the civil war.

Rebel commanders said the capture of Lerida was imminent despite stiff resistance of government forces. They announced that insurgent troops had arrived at the gates and were encircling the city, virtually deserted by its civilian population.

Military observers believed General Yague's central army and the northern force moving eastward from Barcelona would concentrate on smashing Lerida, "gateway" to Barcelona, while the southern corps pushed east through Gaudes toward Tarragona.

Second Big U.S. Naval Bomber Vanishes in Mimic Warfare

Entire Pacific Fleet Launches Search—5 Killed in Crash, 6 Missing in New Disaster

HONOLULU, H. I.—(AP)—Sixty-five American warships and 240 planes were ordered into a search at dawn Thursday for six naval airmen who vanished Wednesday during mimic warfare which had already cost five lives.

No traces of the plane was found during a night-long search Wednesday night.

Five men were killed earlier Wednesday when their plane crashed off Oahu island.

5 Die in Earlier Crash
HONOLULU, H. I.—(AP)—A naval bombing plane crashed at sea Wednesday with a probable loss of five lives, lending a note of realism to a great mock battle for the control of Hawaii.

Witnesses said the plane struck at tremendous speed. Seven men were aboard. Three climbed out on a wing of the partially submerged wreck. One of these, Radioman G. J. Milles, of Wilmette, Ill., swam 150 yards to shore.

H. P. Bartz, aviation machinist's mate of Houston, Texas, was washed ashore unconscious and taken to a hospital.

Aviation Chief Machinist's Mate G. H. O'Neil of Trumbull, Texas, third man to reach the wing, apparently perished. The other four presumably were trapped in the cabin. They were Lieut. L. O. Crane of Nashville, Tenn.; Aviation Cadet W. H. Lear; Navigation Pilot B. I. Windham and Radioman V. A. Luciani.

It was the second of the big long-range bombing planes to be lost at sea during the maneuvers and the fifth of its kind wrecked in Pacific naval operations this year, with an indicated total death toll of 24.

Sunrise Service for This Easter

Outdoor Program to Be Held at 6:30 in High School Stadium

Hope's Easter sunrise service will be held at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning, April 17, in the high school auditorium.

Plans for this second annual outdoor religious service were completed by the Hope Ministerial Alliance Tuesday.

The sunrise service was initiated a year ago, but Easter falling early, in 1937, the weather proved bad and the service was finally held indoors.

This year's service will find the Girl Scouts acting as ushers, with the Boy Scouts in charge of parking automobiles on the grounds outside the stadium.

Scoutmasters have been asked to meet with Roy Anderson, chairman of arrangements, to work out the details.

A platform will be built in front of the middle tier of seats on the west side of the stadium, and a public address system is to be installed.

The speaker will be the Rev. Fred R. Harrison.

The stadium seats will be cleaned just before the crowd assembles so that there will be no danger to Easter dresses.

The entire program of the service will be arranged by the pastors of the city, and the Friday Music club will have charge of the singing.

Roumania Forbids Political Parties

Government Strikes at Fascist-Inclined Organizations

BUCHAREST, Roumania.—(AP)—All political parties in Roumania were abolished Wednesday night in a decree issued by the newly reorganized government of the Patriarch Miron Cristea. The decree was considered a knockout blow to the Fascist-inclined Iron Guard. Existence of political parties previously had been tolerated but their activity prohibited.

The new order said party headquarters must be jettisoned Thursday though it was said new laws allowing creation of organizations with limited political scope would be enacted soon.

Up 3 Feet to 27; 7 Persons Dead in State Tornadoes

Fulton Doubts 34-Foot Forecast Will Menace Levees Again

STATE IS STRICKEN
Rural Sections Swept by Storms in Northern Part of Arkansas

Red river at Fulton rose three feet during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a. m. Thursday, reaching a stage of 27 feet which is two feet above flood stage.

Most of the lowland settlers below that town completed the task of moving livestock and household goods to higher places in anticipation of the government's forecast of 32 to 34 feet at Fulton within the next three days.

Much acreage in the overflow district below Fulton was under water Thursday as the rising stream poured through broken retaining walls which cracked during the disastrous February flood.

These gaps have not been repaired, and additional rises will continue to flood that country. Reports said that many acres of corn and oats would be flooded if the river reached the stage forecast by the Shreveport weather bureau.

Although the threatened flood was causing concern, it was not believed that it would be as damaging as that of last month unless additional heavy rains north of Fulton greatly swell the volume of water.

Thursday's reading showed the river had risen, slightly more than 13 feet in 48 hours.

7 Killed in Storms
LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Arkansas' death toll from a series of tornadoes during the last 24 hours mounted to seven Thursday as new reports of destruction in rural areas trickled in over crippled communication lines.

A tornado Wednesday night smashed through rural sections south of Walnut Ridge, killing Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Baird.

At least five houses were wrecked in the vicinity of Pocahontas.

Twelve were injured, four seriously, by a tornado which struck three White county communities.

Two were injured and a number of homes were destroyed by a tornado which swept through Greene county.

Four persons were brought to a Batesville hospital for treatment after a wind-storm struck scattered sections of Independence county.

Near Cotton Plant U. S. engineers worked to repair White river levee breaks caused by the February floods.

Workers feared the flood waters would pour through a break at Sand Hill and inundate 40,000 acres.

Tornado at Heber Springs
LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Five persons were killed, more than 100 others injured, several perhaps fatally, and scores of homes were destroyed by tornadoes which struck more than a dozen communities in central and north central Arkansas Wednesday.

Most serious damage was reported near Heber Springs where four persons were killed and 75 injured by a tornado which struck about 6 p. m. only 15 hours after one which injured four persons and destroyed much property in the state.

The first tornado struck 11 communities about 2 a. m. Wednesday in Conway, Faulkner, Cleburne and Van Buren counties, killing one person and injuring 16 others, including the four near Heber Springs.

The disasters were the second to strike the state this week. A tornado Monday night dipped down in places

Vesey Pleads for Governor to Sign His Gas Tax Bill

Gas Reduction Measure Is Debated at Public Hearing

200 HEAR ARGUMENT
Protests That It Would Violate Refunding Act Also Heard

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Carl E. Bailey heard a plea Wednesday that he "give the people a break" by signing a bill to reduce the gasoline tax one cent a gallon and receive an ultimatum that such action would "immediately destroy the credit of Arkansas."

Representative John P. Vesey of Hope, the author, and numerous others urged that the measure be permitted to become law. They spoke at a public hearing at the capitol. Bailey presided.

Gov. T. Owens, Little Rock attorney representing holders of state bonds, warned that the bill was in direct conflict with the 1934 refunding act and intimated that lengthy litigation would follow if the governor signed it.

Approximately 200 persons from 32 counties gathered in the governor's reception room Wednesday afternoon to urge favorable action on the tax reduction proposal. Earlier in the day some 100 others had listened to argument on the Vesey bill and others.

Vesey Defends Measure
"It is certainly gall to say that the refunding act of 1934 was a fair act," Vesey said. "If the people were ever victimized they were victimized by act of 1934. Despite that I say my bill does not violate the contract."

"I represent the average man in this plan—the man in the streets who pays the taxes. He needs a break and he is entitled to it."

Vesey said the refunding act's provisions that highway revenues should not be permitted to drop below $10,000,000 a year would not be affected by his or other pending measures. The highway revenues (gasoline and auto license fees last year totaled about $12,000,000).

"There was a surplus of $3,500,000 last year," Vesey said. "If your excellency signed all of the bills passed at the special session it would take only $2,800,000 still leaving a surplus of $600,000."

Owens described Vesey's measure as a "direct violation of a solemn contract between the state of Arkansas and their creditors."

"With the signing of this act you would immediately destroy the credit of Arkansas," he told the governor. "There is no doubt but that it would be tied up in the courts."

Attack Is Heard
"You can't reduce the gasoline tax under this bill without destroying the credit of the state. Governor, I think it should be the most disastrous thing of any administration in your lifetime"

Regulate Your Hair Conditioning

(No. 52)
Junior wanted Grandpa's watch. And Grandpa, who loved the boy beyond words, took it out of his pocket every time the chubby little hands reached for the pocket and whispered "Tick, tick."

Grandpa was with Junior a great deal, and the little game was part of their fun. But Daddy was not so kind. That is, he would show Junior his watch once in a while and let him listen, but there were times when he said "No, no, not today." The little boy would look at him for a minute and then stop his cooing.

But one day Junior began to scream and cry, because he could not twist his daddy's watch from his wrist. This had never happened before and Daddy got angry.

It was all a storm in a very small town, of course, and not at all important in itself, but when we hear the word "conditioning," which has become a byword today, we may as well know what we are talking about. This little episode shows how babies and children are "conditioned" to expect things and get upset when denied. Conditioning means, "becoming accustomed to."

"Balanced" Conditioning
Harry is allowed to stay up late one night. Maybe this is repeated several times in the week. Never again will the child be completely willing to go to bed on time. His taste for permission, you see, has been encouraged. Or Folly is given a nickel for candy, and then another and another. She expects thereafter to get her treat whenever she demands it.

Some conditioning is poor, but most is good. Training is another word for it. The child of two or three is particularly sensitive to conditioning, because he is susceptible to the results of his own acts.

Beware of "Spelling"

We should always use care, mother, in the things we permit, or even actually start ourselves. They will be used either for or against us. The child who can take his little indulgences but does not necessarily learn to depend on them is in good shape. He is not conditioned to the point of emotional disappointment when cross-

The Vivid Story of Oklahoma

We Americans are fond of saying that we are a young country, only a few decades removed from the frontier. But we do not always realize just how close to us the last frontier still is. Oklahoma, where the "old" west was preserved intact, or nearly so, the longest—where the sod was last broken, where the Indians were last tamed, where the last great stretch of free land was made available to the homesteaders—is less than half a century away from its beginnings. Men still living, and not old men either, can remember back to the time when civilization had not yet arrived there.

All of this, of course, means that an immensely dramatic story is contained in the history of Oklahoma; and although this story has been told a good many times, C. B. Glasscock manages to make it sound new in his current book, "Then Came Oil" (Bobbs-Merrill, $3).

Mr. Glasscock is primarily concerned, of course, with Oklahoma's oil industry; but to tell that story properly he has to tell the whole state's story, and to do that he has to go a long way back into the past and discuss, among other things, the whole business of America's treatment of the Indians. So, what with one thing and another, he covers a great deal of ground before he gets through—and the ground is worth covering.

Oklahoma has had her full share of salty, colorful characters, both before the first oil well was drilled and afterward, and Mr. Glasscock mixes few of them. And while you may wish it could have been written by someone with a keener awareness of the deep social implications raised by the facts narrated, this book does an excellent job within the limits which its author marked out.

Science Brings New Helps to the Partially Deaf

(No. 488)
One of the most difficult of the senses to evaluate is the sense of hearing. We depend upon it for our safety in relationship to the hearing of warning signals, the bell of the telephone, steam from a boiling pot or many simple household affairs. Most particularly, however, we depend upon our hearing for the understanding of speech.

Education is slow and difficult when people are unable to hear. The worker is handicapped in his daily affairs if he is unable to hear. Socially handicapped and reflect itself on the character of the individual concerned.

For all of these reasons both educators and specialists in conditions affecting the hearing are concerned themselves more and more with the ability of the persons who are hard of hearing to hear ordinary speech. It is true that they also test the hearing of the person in response to various ranges of sound, using a series of tuning forks to define the range. The hearing of speech is, however, quite different from the hearing of a single sound produced by a device like a whistle or a tuning fork.

By the development of the phonograph as a means of recording sound, it has become possible for the specialists in diseases of hearing to have speech recorded with certain definite levels of tone. It is also possible to repeat the same record again and again so as to evaluate the capacity of the listener at various times. This is a exceedingly important because many words are not familiar to some listeners.

The accent and the inflection of the voice may modify the ability of the listener to hear. The amount of attention given by the listener and the question as to whether or not he is fatigued at the time of the test are also important.

The person who has been tested will recognize the similarity of these tests of hearing with the ordinary charts that are used in testing vision. In the testing of vision the specialist has a series of letters of various sizes. These letters have been selected because they are of standard shapes and record accurately the visual ability of the observer.

It is interesting to realize, as has been pointed out by Dr. Douglas MacFarlan, that the person who depends upon a device in order to aid his hearing must keep in mind the fact that the device amplifies not only speech music that he may wish to hear but also noise which he may not wish to hear. Speech usually comes through in cycles ranging roughly from 300 to 3000. Most of the common noises are below 500 cycles.

The development of new technical devices, such as the automatic phonograph with amplified sound, is doing much to show to those who are concerned with hardness of hearing exactly the nature of the difficulties that are to be overcome. Accurate measurements are the very basis of scientific study and evaluation. In this way routine as sane and wholesome as possible.

He would, Constance thought with an irrepressible smile.

AND indeed, life in the pleasant, rambling house, with its leisurely old-world charm did seem to move on as smoothly and gracefully as if there had been no grim struggle with death going on within its walls.

Throughout the first few days George Thorvald had continued to waken, crying out terrified for Camilla Wynne—moaning that he had killed her. But each time, a few words from Constance—sometimes her bare presence—served to quiet him. After that first day the identification of her with the actress seemed so firmly fixed in the boy's fevered mind that there was no longer any necessity for artificial disguise.

Constance slipped in and out of the sick room at the call of both the nurses; but it was Miss Wilcox with whom she chatted occasionally.

"I understand the Wynne woman has been definitely scared off," she said to Constance one day. "I shouldn't have been surprised if she'd made trouble when she found out George had given her the gate. But since Mr. Thorvald had a talk with her she seems to have decided that the kind of advertising she might stir up wouldn't be so good for little Camilla."

DR. ROGERS Constance saw only occasionally. That he was in and out, however, she knew—driving the 20 miles from Los Angeles, where his main practice was, every day, and occasionally in the middle of the night.

One night, toward morning, he knocked at her door, and when she roused sufficiently to throw on a negligee and open it, asked her to come to the sick boy's room. "Just as you are, please," he said curtly, fastening a profanity look over her tousled hair and sleep-flushed cheeks. "He won't know whether you've got on a cocktail gown or a bathing suit."

Constance was, of course, a little confused from her sudden awakening, and unconsciously picked up her wraps, impersonal manner.

"Of course, doctor," she said, "I'll come. I'll be right there." "I understand. You want me to tell him a bedtime story. . . . But it is quite late. Sometime he is bound to awaken. . . . And that hurts. I know. . . . That is one of the things you have taught me."

It was the impersonation of Camilla Wynne as the nurse in "A Doctor's Best Friend" that had roused him to shouts of mirth that night at Daimler's. She had thought he would be amused now. But he only said with a weary shrug:

"Don't waste time practicing on me. You're letter-perfect already." Feeling snubbed and hurt out of all proportion, she followed him to George Thorvald's room. But she could never entirely dislike him when she saw him with the sick boy; he was so skillful, so sure of himself—so genuinely tender.

When the magic of her mimicry had done its work, and she was moving down the corridor toward her own room, she hesitated. She was wide-awake now. Perhaps she had better go to the library and pick up something to read in case sleep failed to return to her at once.

JUST inside the library door, she halted abruptly, startled to find that she was not alone.

Huddled in the corner of the couch, Mark Rogers was fast asleep—his cheek resting on one arm, his feet still on the floor, as if he had sat down, intending only to rest there for a moment, and then had dropped off in utter exhaustion. Constance was shocked when she saw how utterly weary he looked—shocked, and unaccountably touched, as women often are by the helplessness of men in sleep.

Perhaps it was because in his weariness he seemed younger and a little wistful—as if, Constance thought, he might have dropped off wondering whether there might not be more to life sometimes than telling people what to do, and being caustic about it when they didn't do it.

A light but chill wind had sifted down from the mountains that evening. As Constance watched, the sleeping man stirred uncomfortably, and shivered a little.

Taking a Mexican blanket from the end of the couch, she folded it about him. Without opening his eyes, he snuggled under the comfortable warmth, shifted to a more comfortable position, and said with a drowsy half smile, "Thanks, Hilda. You're a brick."

Constance smiled a little bleakly. So Hilda Thorvald had performed this service for him, too, often enough so that he took it for granted that this was she. . . . The thought caused a faint flutter of annoyance which Constance, unreasonably enough, could not forget.

Spring Memoranda

A tulip unfolds like a miser
Reluctantly yielding his gold.
A pear tree will wait for its neighbors
For fear of appearing too bold.

The lilac, a faint, frightened lady,
Will hesitate, modestly prim;
But iris will cheerfully blossom
At even the slightest wind whim.

On any alluring warm morning,
At any soft nuance of sky,
The iris will open its blue eyes
To startle the staid passers-by.

The pink rose grows so full and proud
I'm wondering if maybe
That lovely, tiny, dew-kissed bud
Could be the rose's baby.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. LaGrone will have as Friday night guests, Mrs. Emily Trebing, president of the Past President's Association and past president of the Arkansas Federation of Music Clubs and Mrs. D. Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Hamilton have as house guests, their mother, Mrs. R. W. Bayless and her little grandson, Roland Culp, both of Gurdon.

Mrs. Bayard Witt of Texarkana was a Wednesday shopper in the city.

In our quest for clean shows for the children, "Snow White" seems to answer in full this quest for movie fans are about to have their hopes raised in something so new and enchanting, and so clean, that a who have been calling for finer and better shows, should make it our desire for happiness is only found in giving out happiness, and what better opportunity could we find than making a child happy. As we elude and most children know, "Snow White" is an adaptation of one of the most loved of the Grimm Brothers fairy tales, whose readers are numbered in the millions, a favorite with generations of Americans, both past and present, and equally as popular abroad. But to go back to making our child happy, our city school superintendent has arranged with the management of the Saenger to give a special morning matinee for the children in the elementary grades, Paisley, Glesby and Brookwood schools, and order that every child in the schools see the show, it has been suggested, and we most heartily second to suggestion, that mothers who so care, when they arrange for their child's entrance fee of 16 cents including tax, give that child the pleasure of inviting a little schoolmate to be his guest, or generously minded women of our city, and it is full of their make yourself responsible for one more entrance fee for some child or children, who would not otherwise be able to see this enchanting show that will make the old grow young and the young meet the elder generation on a common level of unrestrained delight. In order that there may be some system in regard to seeing that each child in these schools will have the admission fee, if you feel so inclined to make some child happy for an hour and a half, please call the principals of Paisley, Oglesby and Brookwood schools not later than Saturday evening.

Pleased by Vote for TVA Probe

"We got it!" Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, left above, seems to be saying to Utah's Senator William H. King after the U. S. Senate voted for a $50,000 joint congressional investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Bridges and King, both bitter opponents of TVA, didn't manage to push through their own version of the investigation resolution, but seem to be happy about the compromise measure which was adopted and sent to the House for concurrence. Five senators and five representatives would conduct the inquiry, under the resolution.

Paul Harrison in Hollywood

It's Getting to Be a Habit With La Lamarr (Of "Ecstasy")

HOLLYWOOD.—Closeups and longshots: Hedy Lamarr—This Austrian actress is very careful about leaving valuable things around. Over in Europe she went swimming, raw, and left her clothes on the bank and somebody stole them. But that was for a picture, called "Ecstasy," which even in its censored form caused more eye strain in this country than anything since the last eclipse.

En route to Hollywood, she was escorted across the continent by a studio representative who was constantly bewildered by the way she scattered her purse and furs all over the train. Entering the Metro lot recently, she tossed a brown paper bag to the gatekeeper saying, "Keep this for me, will you?" He tossed it on a self with his lunch. Next day another watchman, prowling for a sandwich, opened the bag. It contained $100,000 worth of diamonds.

Louise Hovick—Her studio, and presumably Miss Hovick herself, wants everyone to forget that she used to be the strip-tease queen, Gypsy Rose Lee. Privately, however, the actress was annoyed when Sally Rand recently failed to name her on a list of the 10 best dressed women of the world—the women, that is, who'd be beautiful even without clothes. Evidence of how far Miss Hovick has progressed from being an exponent of a fleshly and very realistic art is the fact that she now is going in for abstract paintings. Recently bought a couple of moderns and is reading a book about surrealism and such. I saw it. She also is becoming an amateur patroness of sweetness and light; adores Shirley Temple and would like to meet her.

Danielle Darrieux—If you ask the French star whether she is temperamental, she will say, "But yes!" and her husband will say, "But yes!" She will qualify it then by explaining that sometimes she does lose a temper tantrum, but in the middle of it she gets to feeling pretty silly and begins to laugh at herself.

Henri Deacon, the husband, says it is sometimes that way and sometimes not. When Mlle. Darrieux gets really angry she always leaves—the set, the party, or whatever. It is then that she must be left alone, strictly. A man who ran after her would be taking his life in his hands.

Marvin Stephens—Six years ago this youngster was playing small parts in "Mickey McGuire" comedies with Mickey Rooney the star. The series was abandoned, parts became scarce, and Marvin was washed up at the age of 9. He had to work at something, so he sold papers. Had a corner for street sales, and a delivery route and did so well with them that he re-entered movies reluctantly a few months ago with a role in the "Jones Family" series.

Then came "Checkers," and young Stephens was cast opposite Jane Withers—a role originally intended for Mickey Rooney. Still unimpressed, Marvin continued carrying his route before reporting at the studio but leased his corner to another boy. He declined a contract, explaining that regular movie work would force him out of high school football and basketball. He's weakening, though; they've named him to play with Miss Withers again, in "Racing Blood."

Helen Gibson—She was a trick rider with the 101 Ranch Show and galloped in early movies for $8 a week. For Kalem, though, she made "The Hazards of Helen" and became a star.

or mine if executive approval is given this act."

R. K. Mason, of Camden, former legislator, said the Vesey proposal "isn't going to rob the gentlemen who bought the bonds."

"What right have the bond men got squawk as long as they are assured of their $10,000,000 a year?" he asked. "Politicians have been promising the people tax relief since the time of Noah. You couldn't tickle them more than by signing this bill."

On the question of the Vesey bill being within the purview of the special session, Mason said "it won't cost over $50 to get a supreme court decision on that."

Dabbs Sullivan Little Rock bond dealer, said that gasoline tax revenues were pledged in payment of the highway system and asserted that passage of laws taking funds from the highway funds would make impossible the refinancing in the future of the bonded debt.

"If we're going to pay our debts, we can't continually keep dipping down into our highway funds," he said. "We have gotten along very nicely under the refunding act but there is a fair on the part of outsiders that the people of Arkansas don't recognize their indebtedness."

"The legislature comes in here and clearly violates the refunding law. One bill would take a little out of the highway fund and then another would take a little more."

Pitcher Reports to Little Rock Team

Arrival of Southpaw Leaves Only One More Player Absent

"The buying and trading during the last few days has me dizzy," said Prothro. "I know we're still weak here and there but right now the idea is to get the players on in shape. Wednesday was the day we have been able to get in our practice since Friday.

Even though we are scheduled to play third, Prothro said no position was definite. He had been impressed by the showing Charley Hoyer, rookie candidate, the hot corner. First base also is up in the air. The youngsters will have the opportunity to "make" or "lose" themselves as Travelers during next two weeks. Gerard (Nog) Lomb and Bernie Snyder are all certain for second base and stop.

New York Writers Again Pick Giants

Select Bill Terry's Club to Win Third Straight Pennant

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Sports writers following the New York Giants, watching every little fluctuation in strength of the league champions as only steady observers can. Wednesday picked Bill Terry's club to win a third straight National League championship.

Here's what they said:

John Drebringer, New York Times: "Although the law of averages weighs heavily against the chances of any club winning a third straight pennant, the Giants still look the best of the field in the National League and should be picked again to win. They appear even stronger than last year while their leading rivals have not strengthened themselves to overtake them."

Al Lane, New York Herald-Tribune: "The Giants today are certainly as strong as the team which won the pennant last year, perhaps a little stronger. They could flounder and finish as low as fourth but a better bet is that they will be on top or close to it when the final reckoning is made."

Tom Meany, New York World-Telegram: "It's asking a lot of the Giants to make it three straight in the National League but I think they can do it."

Jerry Mitchell, New York Post: "The Giants should repeat."

Garry Schumacher, New York Journal: "Since pennant victories are seldom accidentally achieved, not only politics and local pride but common sense suggests that the Giants be picked again to win the National League championship. They've won it three times in the last five years and that would seem to be rather conclusive evidence they are the best team."

Ken Smith, New York Daily Mirror: "If Lohman, or some other pitcher, can plug Castleman's spot until 'Slick' comes back, the Giants look like winners again. They won without him in the latter part of the 1937 season; now their job is to thrive without him during the early part of this year."

Will Wedge, New York Sun: "Always string along with the home team in making pre-season predictions—that's what the late Boston Bulger of the old New York Wild used to say. So I take Boze's advice. And it's

Citizens of Woburn, Mass., who stand in front of too many mahogany bars will find themselves behind plenty of steel ones when they are plunked into this wheeled cage and paraded before their fellow townsmen. The coop is the idea of Mayor William E. Kane, who is seen standing by while Ella M. Popular Tenor Introduces "Swing Arias"

● Roy Brower, popular N. B. C. artist appearing on the 9 o'clock morning show (3-7 P.) has a tenor voice that combines the plaintiveness of the Southland with the romance of Old Italy. A Roy Brower song is crooned, whispered and then "sung" as Roy Brower can sing it.

In the N. B. C. show, "Aunt Jemima's Cabin at the Crossroads," Brower takes the part of Ornamental Johnson, a colored singer who made good on Broadway. Brower is famous in radio circles as the "tenor who always sings with his hat on." Millions of people in the East know Brower as the "Prince Charming of Song." Many years ago, he authored, directed and acted his own show of that name. He has had wide experience in stock, musical shows and vaudeville as a professional dancer as well as a singer.

The "Aunt Jemima" program is presented Monday through Friday on the N. B. C. Blue network from 9:00 to 9:15 a. m. C. S. T. It is sponsored by The Quaker Oats Company, and includes a swing band, the Noble Cain chorists, the famous colored contralto, Etta Moten, comedians Buck and Wheat, and jovial Aunt Jemima, played by Harriette Widmer.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" Comes to Saenger Theatre as Screen's Newest Milestone

Walt Disney's First Full-length Animated Feature in Multiplane Technicolor Vivid Picturization of Grimm Brothers' Fantasy

Movie fans are about to have their hopes realized, for something new and enchanting, in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the first Walt Disney animated film to be made in full feature length, in Technicolor, with dialogue, songs, dances and a complete musical score. The picture was three years in the making, its cost being estimated at $1,500,000.

The plot of "Snow White" is an adaptation of one of the most loved of the Grimm Brothers' tales. First published in the early part of the last century, this book has been translated into every civilized language. Its readers are numbered in the millions. A sterling favorite with generations of Americans, past and present, it is equally popular abroad.

Meeting "Snow White," the dainty, lovable little Princess, on the screen is the same as greeting an old friend one has not seen for years. Her adventures begin when the wicked Queen, jealous of "Snow White's" budding beauty, first degrades her to the level of a scullery maid. Even then the Queen's magic mirror informs the sovereign that "Snow White," though attired in rags, is still the fairest in the land.

The palace huntsman is ordered to take the Princess to the forest and kill her. But he permits her to escape. She is befriended by the pitying birds and animals and finds refuge with the Seven Dwarfs in their woodland home. Thither comes the wicked Queen in the guise of a Witch. "Snow White" eats a bewitched apple given her by her rival, and falls into a death-like slumber. So lovely is she that the dwarfs, instead of burying their beloved little housekeeper, place her in a coffin of glass and gold by which they keep watch. The tiny chaps have already wreaked vengeance on the Witch, who has fallen to destruction over a precipice. Then came the handsome Prince, who loved "Snow White" when she was only a scullery maid, awakens her with a kiss, and the sweethearts leave together for their castle home.

This is only a sketchy outline of the action in the RKO Radio Picture, which is studied with detail. There are laughs galore, inimitable incidents too many to describe, as well as matric thrills, romance and pat while over all is the fascinatly bizarre atmosphere of a and exquisitely developed three deminsional color photohy.

So its in "Snow White and the n Dwarfs," include the dwa marching song "Hi-Lo," the shing song; the songs by Snc hite, "Some Day My Prince Snc me," "With a Smile and a Wl-Whistle While You Work" So he Wishing Well Song," and at Prince's song, "One Song." melody of "Some Day My e Will Come" is the picture's e music.
